

ALASKA 211

Connecting Alaskans to resources and services

Every day, you'll find 211 supporting individuals navigating stress, crisis, and uncertainty. Utilizing the most comprehensive database of services in the state, 211 meets real needs in real time. Alaskans can find connections to everything from after school programs, help for caregivers, and job training, to food, and homelessness and housing resources. People also turn to 211 during and after disasters for accurate information about evacuations, emergency food, shelter, and resources for recovery and rebuilding. Let's ensure all Alaskans can count on this free and confidential service to get connected, get help.
